MARINES AND ARMY CONTENT FOR FOOTBALL HONORS

The champion among service football teams will be decided at Homewood Field, Baltimore, Md., this afternoon where the team from Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., will clash with the eleven representing the Army Third Corps Area in the second annual playing of the enlisted man's gridiron classic.

Baltimore today is overflowing with men in the uniforms of all branches of the service and this game has taken an aspect of interest that rivals that displayed at the annual gridiron clash between West Point and Annapolis.

Many distinguished guests of honor will be present to witness the game, including high executive officers of the government, Senators and Congressmen, foreign army and navy officers, members of the Arms Conference, and Maryland State executives and Baltimore officials.

At the invitation of the City of Baltimore and the State of Maryland a championship game between teams representing the enlisted men of the service arms of the United States will take place annually in Baltimore and the game today is the second such game to take place.

From the indications and the interest aroused this year as compared to last year, when the Marines tied with Great Lakes Naval Training Station, this annual game will soon rival in interest any sectional or intra-service game played.

Approximately 3,000 Marines will be on hand to cheer their team to victory and almost as many representatives of the Army are rooting for their champion. Over 2,000 Marines from Quantico, Va., will be present, and previous to the game they will march from their special train to Homewood field headed by Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler and his staff and the band of the Famous Fifth Regiment.

The teams meeting this afternoon are undoubtedly the best of the service teams and the winner will be acclaimed the champion of all branches of the service. The Marines have earned their way to the final round in this tournament of the gridiron by defeating everything they have played this season by decisive scores and getting the final edge by defeating Hampton Roads Naval Base 33 to 0 as compared to a 14 to 0 defeat administered this Navy team by the Great Lakes Naval Station. The Third Army Corps Area team has battled its way to supremacy among the Army contenders by going through a season of hardfought games without a loss and while all indications point to a win for the Marines, the Army team has a strong defense and a great offensive backfield composed of some football stars of the highest calibre.

CHRISTMAS SHIP DESIGNATED

The U. S. S. Sapelo has been designated as the Christmas ship to Europe to replace the U. S. S. Alameda. The U. S. S. Sapelo is scheduled to leave Newport for abroad on December 8, and mail to be carried by this vessel should reach the Supply Officer, Naval Training Station, Newport, R. I., by not later than December 6, 1921.

REAR ADMIRAL WILSON HONORED

On Friday, November 25, at the Texas Club Ball, held at the Hotel Plaza, New York City, Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, U. S. N. Superintendent of the Naval Academy and formerly in command of the Atlantic Fleet, was presented with a loving cup by the enlisted men of the Navy.

The cup bore this inscription:

"This cup is a token of the affection and esteem of the Enlisted Men of the Navy."

Chief Electrician O'Brien, formerly attached to the Oklahoma, in presenting the cup, said:

"Admiral Wilson, I have been selected by the enlisted men to present to you this token of their affection and esteem. May this little silver token keep fresh in your memory a thought for your lads at sea. At sea or in port, in storm or in fair weather, you will ever be remembered by the hearts of the enlisted men of the Navy."

In accepting the gift from the men of the Navy, Admiral Wilson received appreciation from the crowd, headed assembled guests to the ball.

NUMBER OF INSTITUTE GRADUATES INCREASING

Six more enlisted men of the Marine Corps were added to the rapidly growing number of graduates of the Marine Corps Institute during the past week when they were awarded diplomas in various courses they had studied and completed.

Accompanying each diploma, issued by the International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa., and transmitted through the Major General Commandant, was a letter from the Commandant of the Marine Corps, congratulating each graduate upon the successful completion of his course.

The following is the list of the graduates and the course in which each was graduated:

Gunnery Sergeant Paul W. Mulhern—Building Foremen's Course.

Sergeant Algje Guthrie—Salesmanship Course.

Corporal James P. McCuen—Complete Metallurgy Course.

Private Donald H. Hamilton—Salesmanship.

Private Leonard J. Mormino—Salesmanship.

Private Merritt W. Ross—Soil Improvement Course.

SETS NEW SPEED RECORD

The electrically driven superdreadnaught Maryland made a new speed record for ships of her type November 14, going over the official mile course off the coast of Maine at a rate of 22.49 knots. The contract requirement was 21 knots. The Maryland developed horse-power of 36,673. The best speed made by the Tennessee, of the same class, was 21.378 and the maximum horse-power developed by the superdreadnaught was 30,909.

QUANTICO MARINES DEFEAT HAMPTON ROADS NAVAL BASE FOOTBALL ELEVEN, 33 TO 0

On Friday afternoon, November 25, before 3,000 cheering Marines, whose support of their team would do credit to any institution, the Quantico football team took the heavy Navy team from Hampton Roads into camp for a sound beating to the tune of 33 to 0.

Distinguished Guests Present

Among the distinguished guests who witnessed the game were Air Vice Marshall Higgins, Commodore Charlton of the British Royal Air Force, representatives to the Arms Conference; Sir Maurice Hankey, the secretary of the British delegation to the Arms Conference and retired lieutenant colonel of the Royal Marine Artillery; Major General John A. Lefeune, Commandant of the Marine Corps; Major General W. C. Neville, U. S. M. C., and Major General Helmick, U. S. A., Inspector General of the Army.

Lunch Served in Gymnasium

Previous to the game, lunch for the entire command was served in the gymnasium. Here the officers of the post and their families, together with the enlisted men of the post, welcomed the guests of honor, who were later to see the team qualify as one of the best service football elevens in the country.

Following the luncheon a unique and interesting parade of the enlisted men of the Quantico "Johnny" Beckett won the toss and elected to receive the kickoff. Rogers for the Marines received the ball on the 30-yard line and ran it back to the Navy's 40-yard line. Geottge, Sanderson, and Levonis followed each other in a succession of 6 to 10 yard gains through the line, off tackle and around end, placing the ball on the Navy's 1-yard line. A 5-yard penalty set the Marines back, but Geottge smashed through for the first touchdown in exactly seven minutes after the opening whistle. McMinn kicked goal. The Navy then elected to receive the kickoff, but lost the ball on a fumble on the second down. Levonis and Geottge added a first down, but the Marines lost the ball on downs on the Navy's 35-yard line when McMinn failed to throw a forward pass. Nork for the Navy carried the ball three times for a first down, but with McLain failed to repeat and was forced to kick. McMinn ran the ball back 20 yards with good interference. The quarter ended with the ball about midfield. Score, 7-0.

Second Quarter

The Marines opened the second quarter with a series of five successive first downs and Geottge again crossed the Navy's line for a touchdown. McMinn failed to kick goal. The Navy elected to receive the kickoff. Geottge kicked off to the Navy 15-yard line and the ball was brought back 10 yards, where the Navy runner was laid low by the hard-tackling Beckett. Here the Navy backs were thrown for two successive losses and were forced to kick. The ball went out of bounds on the Marines' 46-yard line. Sanderson tore off 26 yards around right end. Geottge added four and the Marines were penalized for being offside. Levonis made two yards and Geottge added 8 on a forward pass. McMinn was then thrown for a loss of 7 yards, which he regained on the next play, but the Navy got the ball on downs. The Navy came back with two first downs. White and Nork of the Navy proved hard men to stop. A penalty gave the Navy its third first down. The half ended with the ball on the Marines' 15-yard line. Score, 13-0.

Third Quarter

At the beginning of the second half Elmer Hall replaced Liversedge at left tackle for the Marines and played a great game. Geottge kicked off to the Navy, who were unable to gain. They kicked to McMinn, who ran the ball back 12 yards to the 50-yard line. Again the Marines carried the ball down the field for what appeared to be another touchdown, when the Navy braced and held for downs on their own 8-yard line. After three attempts, netting 8 yards, the Navy kicked to their own 45-yard line, where McMinn again brought the ball back 12 yards. Two line bucks and a completed forward pass added 17 yards. Geottge smashed through right tackle for 12 more and then repeated for the third touchdown. Sanderson kicked goal. Navy elected to receive, but failed to gain and kicked out of bounds on the Marines' 28-yard line. At this point Chickowski replaced Geottge at fullback and tore off two first downs in two successive plays. The quarter ended with the ball in the Marines' possession on the Navy's 44-yard line. Score, 20-0.

Fourth Quarter

The fourth quarter was played almost entirely by Marine substitutes, Elmer Hall at left tackle. The Marines opened up with a series of eleven plays, in which the Navy failed to gain. Driving Chickowski for the Navy, McMinn brought the ball to the 6-yard line. Here Sanderson sprinted around right end for the fourth touchdown. The Marines failed to kick goal. The Navy again elected to receive. The Marines' seconds held and forced the Navy to kick. Here McGrath replaced McMinn at quarter. It was the Marines' ball on the Navy's 42-yard line. The substitutes reeled off a succession of plays in rapid-fire order and completed three forward passes, the last of which went over for the fifth touchdown. McGrath to Kyle. Marines kicked goal. Navy again received the kickoff and brought the ball back to their own 45-yard line, where they lost it on a fumble as the game ended. Score, 33-0.

A Wonderful Team

The Marines, under the tutelage and captaincy of Lieut. Beckett, displayed a mixture of the smashing, open-running, and aerial attack that makes the game of football thrilling as well as spectacular. The Marine team has a wonderful backfield in that it is able to deliver these three kinds of attack. McMinn is a whirling dervish at quarter and displayed better generalship than in the preceding game with George Washington University.

The Marines earned 25 first downs to the Navy's three, and completed five out of six attempted forward passes to the Navy's two out of five attempts. The Marines were penalized five times for a total distance of 35 yards, while the Navy was penalized once for five yards.

Look Out, Army

There is no denying that the Marine team has developed into a football machine functioning almost as well on the defensive as on the offensive. The Army will have to show an unusual brand of football to beat the Marines at Homewood Field, Baltimore, on December 3.

ARMY PREPARES FOR MARINES TILT

Baltimore, Nov. 29.—The Third Corps Area football team, which will meet the Quantico Marines next Saturday at Homewood Field, is putting the finishing touches on its play this week under the direction of Maj. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower has as his assistants Capt. Butler, of Langley Field, a former West Point star; Capt. Samuel Sturgis, Jr., of Camp Humphreys; Lieut. Ignico, of Langley Field, former Washington and Jefferson luminary; and Capt. Charles Mc... of Camp Holabird.

The Third Corps Area team had its origin in the Tank School team, which captured the Third Corps championship by defeating Fort Howard, Camp Humphreys, Langley Field and other teams. The team has since been strengthened by the addition of players from Langley Field, Camp Humphreys, Fort Howard, Edgewood Arsenal and Camp Holabird.

Down at Quantico, the Marines are winding up their training under the supervision of Johnny Beckett, of Oregon, of former all-American selection, who is assisted by a strong staff.

The game Saturday will be attended by many notables, among whom are the following: Senator Wadsworth, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs; Representative Kahn, chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs of the House of Representatives; Admiral Taylor, Admiral Stitt, Admiral Washington, Admiral Potter, Maj. Gen. Barnsworth, Maj. Gen. Patrick, Adj. Gen. Beckford and his staff; and Speaker Gillett of the House of Representatives.—Washington Herald.

MAJOR J. C. FEGAN, U. S. M. C., VISITS THE INSTITUTE

Major J. C. Fegan, instructor in the Field Officers' Training School at Quantico, Va., and formerly in charge of the Western Recruiting Division of the Marine Corps, was an interested visitor at the Marine Corps Institute, Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., last Saturday.

After a tour of inspection of the different schools he expressed himself as being agreeably astonished at the educational system that had been built for the men of the Marine Corps.

Fair Damsel (watching pole-vault)—Just think how much higher he could go if he didn't carry that stick.

—Jack-o'-Lantern.

Force of Habit

The couple were married.
Alas and alack!
Hubby had failed to
Earn enough jack.

So the wife put her case
In the hands of the court,
And got her decree on the
Plea, non-support.

But the wise judge who handed
This pair a divorce
Was once a Marine on
The Headquarters Force.

On the back of the papers
He handed each one
He wrote: "Battles, engagements,
Skirmishes—none!"

Can You Beat This?

"I wish to congratulate the artist who selected my husband as a model for the drawing that heads this column. I recognized him in an instant. The shape of his nose and the contour of his legs are drawn wonderfully true to life."

—Mrs. Hash Mark.

Good news for mess sergeants: California reports that the prune crop is unusually heavy this year.

"What am I doing? I'm spinning a dime," said the Quantico Marine. "If it's heads, I'll go out in town on liberty. If it's tails, I'll take in the moving-picture show. And if the dime stands on edge, I'll stick around the quarters tonight and police up my equipment for inspection."

Neutrality

The noise of what appeared to be a domestic squabble brought the two wayfarers to a halt. From inside the house they could hear a woman's voice pitched in a tone that was almost a scream.

"You drop that chair, you brute!" she demanded in a shrill treble voice, charged with emotion.

"Then you let go that rolling pin!" came back a reply in a more subdued masculine tone.

There was no mistaking the nature of the altercation.

"Let's go stop it," suggested one of the wayfarers.

"Nothing doing," said his companion. "I've got too much sense to get mixed up in one of those domestic disarmament conferences."

"Claims he's a navigator, eh?" sniffed the skeptical Marine. "Why, that bird couldn't even bring his rifle to a port."

Fighting Tonnage

The fighting tonnage of the Marine Corps was increased by 335 pounds recently when Gunnery Sergeant James D. Turreziani re-enlisted. His No. 12 shoes, however, stand him in good stead. On a forty-mile hike in Haiti, he finished with two rifles, three packs and one exhausted recruit under his arm.

—New York Times.

Do You Believe in Dreams?

"Disarmament or no disarmament, after this enlistment I'm through!" said the chronic grouch as he slipped off his leggings in the barracks after a rather lively drill period.

"Funny that you should mention disarmament just as I was thinking of that very thing," commented his buddy, who was vigorously rubbing the stock of his rifle with an oily rag.

"You know, I had a dream last night," his buddy went on, "and I dreamt they had scrapped the whole works—army, navy, Marines and everything—all except a small detachment of Leathernecks, who had lined up at the pay table for the last time."

The grouch unbuttoned the top button of his shirt and took a look at his watch, mentally regretting that chow call was still a long way off. "Must have been some pipe dream," he growled.

"Maybe it was," said the buddy, as he removed the bolt from his rifle and took a free squint through the barrel. "Maybe it was, but anyways there was that long line of sorrowful Marines, and amongst them was a bunch of guys I know. I saw 'Slim' and 'Red' and 'Spud,' and way down at the end of the line, hanging back as long as he could, was an old, gray-headed gent with hash marks up 'his elbow."

"I get you," said the grouch. "You're going to try and make out that that old gent with all the hash marks was me. Well, you're wrong!"

"I didn't say it was you," continued the dreamer, "but I want to say right now that I took a good, long look at that old guy and he sure looked enough like you to be your twin brother."

Words and Music

A line the Gyrenes oft repeat
Is simply this: "When do we eat?"

Alas, police work must begin,
And so we hear: "Detail, fall in!"

The Top don't say this line with flowers:
"Put on your blouse for office hours!"

These words put non-coms out o' luck:
"Young man, you're busted to a buck!"

Fully Supplied

First Marine—Doggoned if I know what to give the girl for Christmas this year.

Second Marine—Why don't you give her a book?

First Marine—You poor nut, she has a book!

Thought it Was a Saloon

Bones—I just got a letter from a Marine at Constantinople, and he says he spent the whole summer hanging around the Golden Horn.

Jones—If he wants to save any money, he'll have to keep out of those gin mills.

You May Have Noticed—

Scores of men have made a success in life by starting at the bottom of the ladder—but very few of them started as hod carriers.

There is hardly a man living who does not believe he would have made a bigger success in life had he devoted his time and talents to other lines.

You can run away from the Marine Corps if you want to, but you can't run away from the conscience that keeps reminding you that you have run away.

Many a man who believes he has sand-bagged his conscience into insensibility wakes up some morning to find that old R. E. Morse is a cat with more than nine lives.

They say that hell is paved with good intentions, and the mortar that keeps the paving in place is called procrastination.

M. C. I. stands for Marine Corps Institute, and also for the phrase, Makes Capable Individuals.

Money is the root of all evil; that's why so many reformers have tried so hard to get at the root of things.

AN UNHAPPY STATE (Acknowledgments to K. C. B.)

DEAR EDITOR.

SEVERAL OF my buddies.

THE OTHER FELLOW'S JOB

Most of us would like to tackle some other fellow's job for a change. After the novelty of our recruit training has worn off and we settle down into the daily routine, we begin to get "fed up" with doing the same old thing over and over again.

We forget, however, that this little germ of restlessness is characteristic of men who follow every occupation under the sun.

The banker longs to break away from his ledger and go into the manufacturing business. The druggist looks longingly at the tailoring establishment across the street, and wonders why in the world Fate ordained that he should dispense pills and powders when he might have made a living as a designer of cutaway coats.

The baker envies the plumber and the shoemaker gets tired of his last. The farm appeals to the factory worker, while the farmer yearns to desert the soil for the city.

Caruso often confessed to an ambition to follow the profession of cartoonist, and his sketches show promise of success, had he elected to draw caricatures as a regular vocation.

The comedian whose wit keeps the audience in an uproar is frequently bored to death with his job, and many of them look eagerly toward the time when they can adopt some other means of earning a livelihood.

Big Money jobs are not always Big Happiness jobs as scores of the wealthy will assure you.

You who are serving temporarily as Marines while training yourselves for some vocation on the "outside," are bound to find in civilian life some of the unpleasant features and some of the restless moments that come to men of every occupation under the sun.

The thing to do is to stick valiantly at your job, whatever it may be, and make the best of it.

True happiness and contentment come from making the most of our lot in life, and the right time to begin is NOW.

BITS O' MUD FROM QUANTICO

By H. K.

We wish some of you Marines could have been in Quantico last week to learn what the expression "versatile Marines" really means. We've heard of Leathernecks performing all kinds of duty, from chasing bandits in Haiti, guarding the U. S. mails, and acting as orderlies to Presidents and Kings, but—Quantico has invented a new one, and the best part of all is the fellows enjoyed it. We won't keep you guessing any longer. On Wednesday 2,000 Marines in mass formation tramped up and down, up and down, on a muddy football field until what had been mud was hard, dry ground. And like it! Say, those fellows were the happiest bunch we have ever seen. They wanted that field ready for the game with the Navy team. BUT—all next day it poured. As one of our officers ably remarked: "It took the Lord Himself to beat those men." Anyway, we took the Navy team out on the parade ground and beat them just as well as we would have in the Stadium.

We are thinking of advertising the healthful mud baths at Quantico and going into competition with these "exclusive" sanitariums you read about. We've got over 2,000 perfect specimens of good health to back up our advertising. Can any sanitarium say the same?

*****

The long-looked-for additional verse to the Marine Hymn has been written and all Quantico is singing it. It was written for the football game in Baltimore with the Third Army Corps Area champs and just about predicts what is going to happen. Here it is:

From the Barracks down at Quantico

To the field at Baltimore,

We are here to let the doughboys know

How the Devil Dogs can score.

We will let the whole Third Army see

Just exactly what it means

To buck a line that's guarded by

The United States Marines.

OFFICERS' DANCES

Captain Louis Fagan, of the dance committee, announces the following schedule of dates for the officers' dances which will be held at Red Cross Hall, at Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., during the next two months: Friday, December 16, December 23, January 6, and January 20.

Two are required to make service perfect—the server and the served; and you are always responsible for your part.

MAIL-O!

By 1st Sgt. Percy Webb

Marines will be used to protect the mails against the robberies which have been occurring throughout the nation, and which occupied the attention of President Harding and his Cabinet this morning.—New York Times.

The banker wasn't worried

When he had bonds to send,

For he had read the tidings

That his troubles were to end.

"Put those bonds in the mail," he said;

"No one will dare to rob,

For everything is lovely when

Marines are on the job!"

"Mother," said the daughter,

"I might enjoy this trip,

But I'm afraid that bandits

Will steal my purse and grip."

"Hush, daughter! Do not worry,"

The mother softly said;

"U. S. Marines are riding

In the baggage coach ahead."

The engineer climbed in the cab

And threw the throttle wide,

Then shouted to the fireman:

"Hey, Bill! Just let 'er ride!

If those mail robbers stop us

They're goin' to learn some facts,

And, furthermore, they'll learn 'em

Where the chicken got the axe!"

The robber hand was waiting;

The train came round the bend,

But when they saw the Leathernecks

Their plans came to an end.

"Let's beat it!" said the bandits,

As they turned around to scoot;

"We're off of robbin' trains when the Marines commence to shoot!"

PLACED ON RETIRED LIST

The below-named men were ordered placed upon the retired list on the dates set opposite their names:

Seder, Oscar, Sergeant Major, November 30, 1921.

Lesage, John E., Sergeant Major, December 15, 1921.

Limerick, William J., Q. M. Sergeant, November 30, 1921.

Influence of Character

A man who lives right and is right has more power in his silence than another has by his words. Character is like bells that ring out sweet music, and which when touched even accidentally resound with melody.

—Phillips Brooks.

WHAT OUR STUDENTS SAY

That the Marine Corps Institute is accomplishing a great work and that it has the confidence of its students is evidenced by the following extracts taken from some of the hundreds of letters that are received weekly by the different schools of the Institute.

This one is from a "recruiter" who is taking salesmanship:

"Since I have started taking this course, I have decided that it is well worth the time devoted to its study. I have become more enthusiastic with every lesson completed. I can realize that if one applies himself to this study, the benefit to be derived from it is unlimited."

This is from a "seagoing" Marine aboard the U. S. S. Delaware and shows that shipboard duty allows ample time for study:

"I am very well pleased with the results I have obtained from the Marine Corps Institute. I never before had an idea a person could get so much benefit from a correspondence course. When I first started, I thought: 'Oh, well, it doesn't cost me anything, so I guess it's worth trying.' But if I had known it was as good as it is I would have started long ago. From now on you can count on me as a booster of the M. C. I."

And this one from a lad down at Indian Head, Md., who sure hated to study when he was a youngster going to school, but who has since changed his notions when he enrolled in the Civil Service Course of the Institute. He's looking forward to that time when he gets paid off and will be looking for a job, and he knows that his honorable discharge from the Marine Corps counts a few points when he presents the knowledge acquired at the Institute to a Board of Examiners of the Civil Service Commission when he applies for one of those $2,000 per annum jobs:

"The Civil Service Course I am now taking up is an excellent study and I find the text-books arranged so that a person of a limited education can easily understand them. When I was going to school I always found it disagreeable to study, and in plain words I hated to go to school. But since I have started this Civil Service Course I find it a pleasure to study, because it is so interesting and beneficial."

Sea Saws

A clever young flyer named Spears
Was equipped with a pair of large ears.
He was shot down one day

MARINE MAIL GUARDS

BALK HOLD-UP PLANS

Action of the Postoffice Department in placing Marine guards on mail trains and trucks has had the desired effect of preventing a number of carefully planned projects to rob the mails, according to reports to Second Assistant Postmaster General O'Shaughnessy, in charge of transportation for the department. Mr. O'Shaughnessy said the Marines had been requested after department agents had learned that raids on the mails were being planned throughout the country this winter. The Marines have already more than justified their presence, the official said.

One case in particular, where a planned robbery came to naught, it was said, was in Texas, where preparations for a hold-up were abandoned. Similar plans at other places also were frustrated and generally robbery of the mails has dropped notably, Mr. O'Shaughnessy said. There was evidence, he said, that some of the robberies had been as carefully planned on a big scale as was that recently in New York.—Washington Post.

U. S. NAVY MAKES FIRST USE OF HELIUM IN AIRSHIPS

The Secretary of the Navy authorizes the following:

It is expected that the first flight trials of the Navy's non-rigid airship C-7, making the first practical demonstration of the use of helium, will take place about December 1 from the Naval Air Station, Hampton Roads, Va. It will probably be flown to Washington. This will be the first time in the history of aircraft that the envelope of the airship will be inflated with helium, an absolutely inert and non-inflammable gas.

The airship C-7 is one of the class of non-rigid airships built by the Navy in 1918 for the purpose of conducting anti-submarine operations during the war. The general characteristics of this class of non-rigid airships are as follows:

Gas capacity, 181,000 cu. ft.; length overall, 192 ft.; extreme height, 59 ft.; maximum diameter of hull, 42 ft.; extreme width (over fins), 53 ft.; speed, 60 m.p.h.; power plant, 2 Union 125-h.p. engines.

Helium, next to hydrogen, is the lightest gas known, and is therefore the only gas that can take the place of hydrogen in lighter-than-air craft. For military purposes it possesses an inestimable value over hydrogen in that it is non-inflammable and at the same time has 92 per cent of the lifting power of hydrogen. Helium is found in small quantities in the atmosphere, sea water, mineral waters, and in all mechanical and natural gases.

In so far as is known, however, an adequate supply for military and commercial purposes is obtainable only in certain natural gas fields within the continental limits of the United States. The United States, therefore, has a practical monopoly of the source of supply.

NUTOLOGY

I saw a gum-drop on the street.
I saw a side-walk without feet.

I heard a birch-bark in the park.
I saw a moon-light up the dark.

I saw a shoe that lost its sole,
Where even doughnuts came out whole.

I saw a lamp-post lots of mail,
And saw an air-break out of jail.

I saw a cow-slip on some peels,
And watched O'Sullivan rubber heels.

I saw a horse-fly off one day,
And I think the chimney-flue away.

I saw a tropical-clime a tree,
And felt the night-fall down on me.

I saw Dickens turn and Oliver Twist.
Indeed, there is little that I have missed.

Except one very peculiar thing—
I've never heard a wedding-ring.
—The Searchlight.

DO IT NOW

He was going to be all that a mortal should be—Tomorrow.

No one should be kinder or braver than he—Tomorrow.

A friend who was troubled and weary he knew,
Who'd be glad of a lift and who needed it, too;

On him he called to see what he could do—Tomorrow.

Each morning he stacked up the letters he'd write—Tomorrow.

And thought of the folks he would fill with delight—Tomorrow.

It was too bad, indeed, he was busy today,
And hadn't a minute to stop on his way;
More time he would have to give others,
he'd say—Tomorrow.

The greatest of workers this man would have been—Tomorrow.

The world would have known him, had he ever seen—Tomorrow.

But the fact is he died and he faded from view.

And all he left when living was through
Was a mountain of things he intended to do—Tomorrow. —Grit.
